THE NEW REMINGTON
Sewing Machine
STILL STANDS
UNRIVALLED.

All competent judges acknowledge it to be the simplest, the easiest, the quietest and the most easily handled of any shuttle machine now in market. It will sew with perfect stitch, from the finest muslin to the heaviest and firmest beaver cloth, or leather, without change of stitch, needle, thread or tension. Its percentage of increase of sales in 1874 was 90¾ per cent, and 82¾ per cent, more than any other machine. In 1875 its ratio of increase was still greater, being 100 per cent. More than fifteen thousand other machines of first-class make have already been exchanged for it.

No person wishing a sewing machine can do themselves justice, whatever their prejudice, if they fail to examine the New Remington before purchasing. Five dollars a month will buy you a Remington at 35 BROADWAY.

Newport Daily News.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1876.

SUNSET ON THE BEARCAMP.

A gold fringe on the purpling brim
Of Lisle the river runs,
As down its long, green valleys far
The last of Summer's suns,
Along its tawny gravel-bed
Broad-flowing, swift, and still,
As if its meadow-levels felt
The buzzy of the hill,
Not ripples between its banks of green
From curve to curve it slips;
The drowsy maple shadows rest
Like fingers on its lips.

A waif from Carroll's wildest hills,
Unlocked and unknown!
The urchin legend of its name
Prowls on its banks alone.
Yet flowers as fair its slopes adorn
As ever Yarrow knew,
Or, under rainy Irish skies,
By Spenser's Mulla grew;
And through the gaps of leaning trees
Its mountain cradle shows;
The gold against the amethyst,
The green against the rose.

Touched by a light that hath no name,
A glory never sung,
Aloft on sky and mountain-top
Are God's great pictures hung.
How changed! The summits vast and cold!
No longer granite-bowed,
They melt to rosy mist; the rock
Is softer than the cloud;
The valley holds its breath; no leaf
Of all its elms is twirled:
The silence of eternity
Seems falling on the world.

The pause before the breaking seals
Of mystery is this;
Yon miracle play of night and day
Makes dumb its witnesses.
What unseen altar crowns the hills
That reach up stair on stair?
What eyes look through, what white wings fan
These purple veils of air?
What presence from the heavenly heights
To theirs of earth stoops down?
Not vainly Hellas dreamed of gods
On Olympus snowy crown!

Slow fades the vision of the sky,
The golden water pales,
And over all the valley-land
A gray-winged vapor sails.
I go the common way of all;
The sunset fires will burn,
The flowers will blow, the river flow,
When I no more return.
No whisper from the mountain pine
Nor lapsing stream shall tell
The stranger, treading where I tread,
Of him who loved them well.

But beauty such as never lost,
God's colors all are fast;
The glory of this sunset heaven
Into my soul has passed,—
A sense of gladness unconfined
To mortal date or clime;
As the soul liveth, it shall live
Beyond the years of time,
Beside the mystic asphodels
Shall bloom the home-born flowers,
And new horizons flush and glow
With purer hues of ours.

Farewell! these spilling hills must wear
Too soon their wintry frown,
And snow-cold winds from off them shake
The maple's red leaves down,
But I shall see a Summer sun
Still rolling broad and low;
The mountain slopes shall blush and bloom,
The golden water flow.
A lover's claim is mine on all
I see to have and hold,—
The everlight of perpetual hills,
And sunsets never cold!
—John G. Whittier in the Atlantic Monthly.

DICK, THE RAT.

THE WAYS OF RAT CATCHING.—MR. TONER TELLS HOW HE DOES IT—AND HOW HE MAKES A LIVING BY IT.—A SAMPLE OF HOW HE WORKS A HOTEL.

With one arm resting on the counter of a saloon in the Bowery, and the unengaged hand holding a glass of whiskey, Mr. Richard Toner, better known as "Dick, the Rat," explained to a Times reporter the mysteries of professional rat catching. Taking a stout canvas bag from under the table, he produced an ordinary pair of tongs. "This," said Mr. Toner, "is what I catch them with. You see I have the inside of the end of these tongs made like a rasp. Now, there's another improvement of mine. If you have an ordinary pair of tongs, and grab a stout rat by the tail, he'll wiggle away, but if ye catch him with these he's bound to go in the hole."

"What else do you use, Mr. Toner?"

"Well, only a dark lantern and a bag. Sometimes I sprinkle stuff on the floor to make them come out of their holes. The stuff is a trade secret and attracts the rats by its smell. It's the same as flies and molasses."

"Where do you catch the most rats?"

"Slaughter houses and granaries. I often make a good big in hotels. One night I got 350 rats in the Astor House kitchen."

"How do you charge for your services?"

"Well, me and my assistant gets $5 each every night we work and our board. And when we work in private houses we sometimes charge $15 for every hundred rats we catch."

"What do you do with the rats?"

"Sell them, of course. Merchants and brokers has fancy terriers they want to train to kill rats, and if there's a ratting match comes off we furnish the rats. Good rats is worth $20 a hundred."

"I suppose you have a considerable number of customers?"

"Oh, nearly all the big hotels, breweries, saloons and slaughter houses in the state. You see, traps and poison can't drive them out. Rats breed so fast that you can't catch them quick enough, and if you poison them why they die in their holes."

"Well, how do you catch them?"

"I go into the cellar or wherever the rats are with John. He holds the bag and I take the dark lantern and the tongs. We have rubbers on and step light. The rats run around and I squeak like one. Then they come close to us, and I throw open the slide of the lantern. The rats get confused and rush into the light, and I grab them and put them in the bag. When there's no more, I go out and leave the place for a couple of hours, or another day, and then I go at them again. But the best way to know is to see me work. Me and John is going to clean out a hotel tonight, and if you come along you can take a hand in. I'll leave here at 12 o'clock. The reporter accepted the proposition, and on returning at midnight, found Mr. Toner and his partner in waiting. Cassidy carried the bag and tools, and, jumping on a Broadway car, the party were soon conveyed to their destination, a prominent Broadway hotel. The night clerk, on being informed by Mr. Toner of his business, ordered him to be shown to the servants' hall, where the head waiter, a couple of cooks, and several grooms were waiting to see the rat-catchers. These persons regarded Mr. Toner and his companions with the utmost awe and respect. One of the English grooms gave a graphic description of several matches he had seen at Jimmy Shaw's, in Windmill street, near the Haymarket, and Mr. Toner gravely assented to the statement that Jimmy Shaw's Jacko was the best ratter ever put into a pit. Mr. Toner next asked for the key of the kitchen. This having been given him, he opened the closets and store-room doors, and sprinkling a few spoonfuls of odorous fluid in the centre of the kitchen he retired, locking the door after him and putting the key in his pocket, remarking at the same time to the head cook, "If any of the folks up stairs want victels cooked now, they've got to go without 'em." Having uttered this declaration of authority, Mr. Toner resumed his seat in the servants' hall, and spent the following hour in drinking and smoking.

At length he remarked, "I guess we'll go to work," and lit his dark lantern. With the lantern in his left hand and the tongs in his right, Dick led the way, Cassidy following next with the bag, and the reporter bringing up the rear. "Stop light," said Dick, as he unlocked the kitchen door. The party stepped quickly in and shut the door. The patter of the rats on the floor could be heard plainly. With a little instrument he had in his mouth, Dick imitated the "squeal-squeak" to perfection. The next moment he threw back the slide of the lantern and Cassidy held the bag open. The circle of light on the floor seemed fairly swarming with rats. As quick as lightning Dick seized them with the tongs and dropped them into the bag. The rats dashed round in the circle of light, and seemed afraid to stir beyond it. They were quickly snatched up until no more remained on the floor. "That's not so bad" said Cassidy, giving the bag a shake. "There's a hundred and twenty Dick." Toner replied, "There's another got away over in that corner there, I heard him." And he walked rapidly to a portion of the kitchen where there was a huge chopping-bench. Sure enough, there was the rat; Dick threw the glare of the lantern right on the rat, blinding him, and hauling him out with the tongs. "I guess that's all," said Dick, "Now you see how its done."

Noticing that Cassidy kept swinging the bag about, the reporter asked what that was done for. "Oh," said Dick, "that's to keep the rats from eating their way out, and I'll tell you a good story about that. One cold night I was taking a hundred rats to a broker's house for a rat bait, when a 'copper' stopped me in the street and asked me what I had in the bag. I had my collar up over my face and an old hat on, and he took me for a burglar. I said I hadn't got anything, but kept shaking the bag. Well, this policeman wanted to catch a burglar bad, so he necked me and took me to the station. A certain captain, I ain't going to mention his name, was behind the desk, and he says: "Who've you got there, Connors?" and the cop says, "I guess he's a burglar." "So he is," says the Cap., 'his picture is in the gallery,' and he came from behind the desk to have a good look at me. 'What stuff have you got in that bag?' 'You can look for yourself,' says I, and I gave him the bag. He dropped it on the floor, and you ought to see his face when them rats ran all over the station-house. 'Who the —— are you,' says he. 'I'm Dick the Rat, says I.' 'You get out of here —— quick,' says he, and so I did. Well, good night young fellow. I'm going out to Newark tomorrow to work a brewery."

TWO PROPOSALS.

Governor Matthew Griswold, when a young man, was grave, shy, tall, and somewhat awkward. He courted a young lady in Durham, who put him off, delaying to give an answer in the hope that a doctor, whom she preferred, would propose. He finally tired of his long rides on horseback, and, suspecting the state of her mind, pressed her for an immediate decision.

"I should like a little more time," reiterated the fair one.

"Madame, I will give you a life-time," was the lover's response; and rising with dignity, he took his leave.

The lady took her life-time, and died single, as the doctor never came forward. Young Griswold returned to Lyme so deeply mortified with the failure of his suit that he was little disposed to repeat the process of love-making. In course of events his second cousin, Ursula Wolcott, came on a visit to Black Hall. She was a modern edition of her grandmother, the historical Martha Pitkin, bright, beautiful, accomplished, and self-reliant. She was a little older than Matthew. She became assured that his affections were centered upon herself, but he was provokingly reticent. Meeting him on the stairs one day, she asked, "What did you say, Cousin Matthew?"

"I did not say anything," he replied.

A few days later, meeting him, she asked in the same tone, "What did you say, Cousin Matthew?"

"I did not say anything," he replied as before.

Finally, meeting him upon the beach one morning, she again asked, "What did you say, Cousin Matthew?"

"I did not say anything," he still replied.

"It is time you did," she remarked, with emphasis.

Whereupon something was said, the result of which was a wedding, and the brilliant bride had a queenly reign at Black Hall. No lady in American history could introduce you to more governors among her immediate relations. Her father was Governor Roger Wolcott, her brother was Governor Oliver Wolcott, her nephew was the second Governor Oliver Wolcott, her cousin was Governor Pitkin, her husband was Governor Matthew Griswold, and her son was Governor Roger Griswold.—[Martha J. Lamb, in Harper's Magazine for February.

PUBLIC WORKS.—Somebody proposes a pipe. It would be just nothing. It will be a very convenient pipe. The mover does not see how they have got along without it. It will really cost nothing. So a little money is voted, and the diggers begin to dig. Then a little more money is voted, and there is a little more digging; and so they go on voting and digging and digging and voting until the time comes to issue bonds. Will this miserable pipe never be laid? Come out of contractors having attained opulence, retired. Fresh proposals, new contracts, additional appropriations, but the pipe is never completed. The costly steam-engine clanks, the jolly laborers flourish their spades, the civil engineers superintend and estimate; all concerned think that they have got a windfall in that pipe; and they are right. There is something dreadfully uncertain about a public pipe. It has an innate power of lengthening itself, and of costing more by the foot than any private pipe of whatever description. Almost every city has its pipe, only they call it by some other name. Sometimes they christen it a park. We have known it to be a bridge, or a pier, or a hall, or a road. It makes no difference. It comes to the same kind of money, and a great deal of it. The aggregate indebtedness of American cities is attracting attention; and it all comes of pipe!—[New York Tribune.

HIS LUCID EXPLANATION.—A Chicago woman, who had been reading about whiskey frauds in the paper, turned to her husband the other evening and inquired:

"My dear, what do the papers mean by saying that the man has squealed?"

"Why!" replied the man loftily, "they mean that some member of the ring has 'peached' on the rest."

"Peached on the rest?" exclaimed the wife; "now what does that mean?"

"Why, it means that he's—he's 'blowed' on 'em,"

"Blowed on them?"

"Yes: you see he's given them away."

"Given them away?"

"Why of course—dummet. Can't you understand anything? Do you think I am an unabridged dictionary?" continued the husband, indignantly. "It means he's—he's 'let out on 'em'—gone back on his 'pals'—'squealed'—you know!"

The woman did not seem quite satisfied with the man's lucid explanation: but, not wishing to appear ignorant in her husband's eyes, she remarked, "Ah, yes; I see!" and forbore further questioning.

THE DAY.

Mrs. Burnside is in a very critical condi- and the Senator remains at Providence.

The Rev. Fred Bell has been deposed from the Methodist Primitive church in Brooklyn for immoral conduct.

By an explosion at the Exeter coal mine in West Pittston, Pa., on Saturday, four men were killed outright and six or eight others badly injured.

Would-be Senator Pinchback, in a public letter, denies that the Africans in the country favor a color line in politics, or a political organization on the basis of race.

General Ord, commander of the military department of Texas, says the Mexican government is not responsible for the cattle raids to which the rancheros on the American side of the Rio Grande are subjected.

Extended arguments were made in the Babcock trial on Saturday as to the admissibility of certain telegraphic despatches claimed to have passed between the conspirators and the defendant. The decision of the court will be announced today. It is reported that a gigantic whiskey ring has been discovered in Illinois, and that papers connecting Gen. Babcock with its operations have been found. Startling disclosures are promised.

The secretary of the Seneca Sandstone Company has produced before a Congressional committee the stock book of the company showing that on the same day certificates of stock for 200 shares each were issued to Ulysses S. Grant, Gen. Dent, Surgeon General Barnes, William H. Seward, E. B. Washburne, Caleb Cushing and B. B. French. He also explained how the worthless second mortgage bonds of the company to the amount of $90,000 were taken as collateral security by the Freedmen's Bank.

A PLAN OF RESUMPTION.

The New York board of trade has memoralized Congress to the effect that the financial bill of last Winter, fixing a definit time for the resumption of specie payments, "is a standing menace against all business enterprise." The memorial shows that at least $150,000,000 in gold must be held by the Treasury before it can resume specie payments, and concludes with the following three recommendations:—

1. That the Treasury Department be required to retain in the sub-Treasury from the gold received from duties, sufficient to add at least $10,000,000 annually to its gold reserve, and that the national banks be compelled to retain, as a part of their required reserves, all the gold received by way of interest upon their bonds held by the government, as security for their circulation and deposits.

2. The repeal of so much of section three of the act of January 14, 1875, as provides for the resumption of specie payment on the 1st of January, 1879.

3. The amendment of the above named section of said act so that it shall require the Secretary of the Treasury, whenever national bank notes are withdrawn from circulation, to reissue, in their stead, eighty per centum of the amount thereof in greenbacks.

But it is by no means certain that these measures would work well. Whenever national bank notes are withdrawn from circulation it is because of the excess of currency over the demands of trade. This spontaneous contraction is not to be encouraged according to these recommendations, but, to be resisted. Not only is the currency not to be contracted, but it is not to be allowed to contract itself. It is to be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to keep up the volume of the currency despite the move of trade. Any increase of the amount of paper money would of course increase the amount of gold that would have to be hoarded, losing interest meantime, until the day of resumption, and the more gold is thus withdrawn from business to the Treasury vaults, the higher will the premium on gold rise, the greater will be the difference between gold and greenbacks, the greater will be the rush for gold when the vaults are opened, and the greater will be the shock inflicted upon business by resumption.

A FAIR FORGER.—Some remarkable forgeries have just come to light in Des Moines, Iowa, the perpetrator of which is Mrs. Ellen S. Tupper, who has long been regarded as one of the most able, intelligent and energetic women in the West. Over a year ago, it appears that a number of notes, purporting to be signed by several wealthy and prominent citizens, Gov. Carpenter among others, were presented for discount at one of the banks in Des Moines by Mrs. Tupper, which proved to be forgeries. As soon as the fact was discovered Mrs. Tupper was informed, and she immediately confessed to the wrong she had done and promised prompt reparation. In view of her respectability no criminal proceedings were begun against her, and she subsequently paid the entire amount. Recently, however, other forgeries of a more startling character have been traced to Mrs. Tupper, and measures were at once taken for her arrest, when it was discovered that the lady was dangerously ill. Mrs. Tupper is a native of Providence, and in 1843 she married Allen Tupper, a wealthy lumber merchant at Houlton, Me. Soon after Mr. Tuppe's health failed, and they moved to Iowa, where Mrs. Tupper for a time supported her family by teaching school, subsequently turning her attention to bee culture. In this latter field she soon achieved an enviable distinction, and her business extended to every state in the Union. She edited one or two bee journals, wrote for several others, and frequently went abroad to lecture. Two years ago she broke down in both body and mind from overwork, and it was soon after this that the forgeries were first discovered. She was financially embarrassed, and it is thought that the constant worry of her affairs unsettled her reason, and caused her to commit acts against which her very nature would seem to revolt. Her plan appears to have been to raise money by forgeries, and, when discovered, to replace it with sums obtained in a similar way. Much of the forged paper seems to have been taken up before maturity, and how much of it is still outstanding it is not now possible to tell. Her family physician declares that the lady has become a monomaniac on the subject of money, but it remains to be seen whether her victims will take this charitable view of the matter.

A VALENTINE.

BY A PRACTICAL MAN.

Darling, since rents are low this year,
And board is going down,
And I am doing well on 'Change—
A man that's known down town—

And since "no cards" is quite the rage,
And wedding fetes decline,
St. Valentine hath tempted me
To ask you to be mine.

I've thought the thing most squarely out,
And counseled with a friend,
And so, I offer you my hand
To hold till life shall end.

I do not prate of dews and flowers,
Or balmy zephyrs sweet,
But here I bring an honest life
And lay it at your feet.

This I will say: Though I admire
And love you as you are,
As Mrs. Jones, my own true wife,
You'd be more dear by far.

Then, darling, shall it be in vain
My heart goes pit-a-pat?
Oh, think what joy 'twould be for you
And me to take a flat!

Or shall it be a corner house,
Where you can watch and see
Your husband coming up the street—
Yes, coming home to tea?

No boarding-house for us, my love;
'Twould not be worth the giving;
For though I write no poetry,
We'll take it out in living.

Ah! since this joyful project came
I have not even dozed;
So, pry'thee, answer soon—for which
You'll find a stamp inclosed.

PERIODICALS.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.

The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending Feb. 5th and 12th have the following interesting and valuable contents: Montenegro, by Edward A. Freeman, from Macmillan; A Ramble in Syracuse, Fortnightly Review; Wesleyan Methodism, in Wesley's Lifetime and After, by J. Llewellyn Davies, Contemporary Review; The English Jews, Spectator; Some Aspects of Science in Relation to Religion, Church Quarterly Review; In My Study Chair, Blackwood; Conversation with Napoleon at Longwood, St. James; German Home Life, by a Lady, concluded, Fraser; and instalments of "The Curate in Charge," by Mrs. Oliphant; "Her Dearest Foe," by Mrs. Alexander, author of "The Wooing O't," and the admirable story of "The Dilemma." The usual choice poetry and miscellany complete the numbers. For fifty-two such numbers of sixty-four large pages each, (or more than 3000 pages a year) the subscription-price ($8,) is low, or still better, for $10.50 any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies is sent with The Living Age for a year, both postpaid. Littell & Gay, Boston, are the publishers.

SOCIAL POLITICS IN BELGIUM.—That the so-called European Liberals are ignorant of the first principles of liberty is shown by a remarkable tempest in a tea-pot that has just occurred in Belgium. As governor of Hainaut, prince de Chimay gives an annual ball, and as usual announced one for the 12th of January. He sent his invitations out, but neglected to invite two men who had been invited the year before, Dr. Duvaucleray, surgeon of the Third chasseurs, and M. Weiler, engineer of the Mariemont mines. Both of these gentlemen had been married during the year, and had not only ignored the church, but had made their marriages a sort of demonstration against religious marriages. It is true that civil marriage in Belgium is perfectly legal, but popular opinion is still in favor of a subsequent benediction of the church. MM. Duvaucleray and Weiler wanted very much to attend the governor's ball, to show off their new wives, who had made extensive preparations for the event, and had prepared costumes equal to any worn by the aristocrats. There was a spirit of defiance in all this, which soon got abroad and reached the ears of the governor. He simply dropped the names of these gentlemen from his list. M. Weiler then addressed a summons to the governor, asking an invitation for himself and wife, to which the governor replied with exquisite politeness, stating that there was a wide difference of opinion between them upon essential principles, and a divergence too wide to admit of an attempt to develop further personal relations. M. Weiler was not satisfied with this rebuff, and he demanded an invitation to the ball for himself and wife, as a matter of right. The governor again replied that he could not meet the demand. He did not consider that his official position imposed any rules as to his social conduct, and he furthermore informed the engineer that it was not by virtue of any right that his guests, functionaries or any other, came to his balls. Weiler and his friends are now in a nice state of mind, and are doing their best, in Belgium and France, to make people believe that the principles of liberty are in danger because they were not invited to the governor's ball!

WINNINGS ON THE TURF.—The winnings of the various patrons of the English turf during 1875 constitute a formidable array of figures. Lord Falmouth won $105,760, and had eight successful horses; Prince Bathyany, a French nobleman, residing in England, secured $50,875, and above all the Derby, with "Galopin." The comte de Lagrange took nearly $50,000, while Mr. Stirling Crawfurd had ten winners who drew in $43,000. Sir George Chetwynd, who married the marchioness of Hastings upon the death of her spendthrift husband, and who is declared to have agreed to "swear off" racing before marriage, yet won $32,000, while the owner of "Cambello" netted no less. Lord Rosebery, the young Scotch peer, who visited this country a short time ago, made $25,000. He possesss a fine lot of promising young racers who are likely to figure well in future Derbys, St. Legers, Ascots and Goodwoods. Mr. Chapin, M. P. for Lincoln, and Mr. Merry, both great turfites, won no less than $20,000 each. The latter retires from these pursuits, having sold "Doncaster" and "Marie Stuart" for $105,000. The duke of Westminster has purchased his racing establishment at Ilussby, and is forming a stud there of the choicest kind. Winning horses of special note are "Spinaway," who won eleven races and $45,000; "Galopin," five and $38,000; "Farnese," eight and $32,000; "Craig Miller," two and $25,000; "Cambello," one and $22,750; "Earl of Dartray," three races and $18,765; "Petrarch," one and $17,220; and several others, such as "Kaleidoscope" and "Lowlander," hand their owners over about $15,000 each. During the year 1900 races were run over courses varying from four furlongs to four miles, 1296 being however, for distances under a mile. Of the 1900 three were worth more than $20,000 each, these being the Derby, St. Leger and Two Thousand Guineas. Nineteen races were worth from $5000 to $10,000, and sixty from $5000 to $2500; the whole seventy-nine amounted to $480,780.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

—The storm signal is up.

—Joshua Sayer is confined to his house by sickness.

—The Newport band have taken possession of their new quarters on Commercial wharf.

—The Western Union Telegraph Company have reopened their office in the Perry House.

—The brig John Pierce, Capt. Townsend, arrived at Wilmington, Del., on Friday the 11th, from Cardenas.

—There was a Sunday school concert at the Second Baptist church last evening. The attendance was very large.

—The furniture belonging to the Peter Parker estate in this city will be sold at auction tomorrow if the weather is fair.

—The Rogers high school orchestra, Prof. Marshall, will furnish the music for the old folks' concert at the Aquidneck assembly rooms tomorrow evening.

—At the auction sale of reserved seats for the supplementary lecture course on Saturday some seats went as high as $2.25 and a large number were sold for $1.87.

—St. Mary's Catholic Benevolent Society have invited all the Catholic societies in the city to participate with them in celebrating the birthday of Ireland's patron saint.

—The attendance at the union prayer meeting at the First Baptist church Saturday afternoon showed no falling off in interest. The next meeting will be held at Zion church.

—The Father Mathew Temperance Society had a meeting last evening at which it was voted to parade on St. Patrick's day. Samples of regalia were examined, and committees of arrangements were appointed.

—Daniel McGowan, formerly in the post-office, but now connected with the large carriage building establishment of James Cunningham & Son, Rochester, N. Y., is spending a few days in town.

—The Rev. J. P. Taylor preached at the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday afternoon, and the Rev. W. F. Whitcher preached at the United Congregational church in the evening.

—The ringing of the new chapel bell on the Point at half past five o'clock yesterday caused an alarm of fire, which, however, did not become general. Horses were in some cases taken to the engine houses.

—A quartermaster's sergeant and a soldier from Fort Adams were run away with yesterday afternoon while taking a buggy ride on Spring street, and both were thrown out. The sergeant was severely injured and was taken to the station house in an insensible condition. He was afterward taken to the fort. The buggy was found in Burnside court, almost a complete wreck.

SATURDAY EVENING SOCIALS.—A series of Saturday evening socials is being held at the Aquidneck House, the spacious dining room being used for dancing. The one held last Saturday evening was attended by about seventy-five or eighty persons among whom were Mrs. Bedlow and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. Churchill, Mrs. E. A. Wyeth, Mrs. Col. Creighton, the Misses Simpson, the Misses Childs, the Misses Hunter, Miss Powel, Col. T. W. Higginson, Dr. Arnold, Leslie Pell Clark, Edward Mayer, Samuel Powel, Jr., Thomas Dunn, Ensign Case, U. S. N., and the officers from Fort Adams and the engineers' office. The music was furnished by the Newport orchestra, Prof. Smith, leader. The festivities came to an end at eleven o'clock.

THE LAST RITES.

THE OBSEQUIES OF ALEXANDER E. HUFFEY, —SOLEMN SERVICE AT THE CHURCH— AN IMPOSING PROCESSION.

The funeral of Alexander E. Huffey was solemnized yesterday noon at the Central Baptist church. The center of the church was reserved for the Knights of Pythias, Grand Army of the Republic and Union Temple of Honor.

The remains were escorted from the home of the deceased to the church by Redwood lodge of K. of P., headed by the First artillery band. The services at the church were of a very impressive character. They were commenced by the chanting "He is gone," by the choir of the church. The Rev. S. F. Hancock read several selections of Scripture, appropriate to the occasion, the first being the XXIII Psalm, which the deceased repeated just before he breathed his last. Prayer was then offered by the Rev. N. J. Wheeler, pastor of the church, after which the hymn "Asleep in Jesus" was sung.

The societies were then allowed to see the remains after which the audience were permitted the same privilege. The Knights of Pythias then took charge of the remains and carried them to the hearse, the band playing a dirge at the time.

The bearers were John Waters, Thos. E. Sherman, George N. Pierce, Clarence Greason, Charles Langley and Andrew J. Bashford. The funeral procession left the church in the following order. Upon each side of the street and behind the procession crowds of spectators were immense.

Carriages.

The remains were enclosed in a handsome casket adorned with the emblems of the Knights of Pythias. On the cover were two handsome wreaths of flowers and the steel helmet, the cuffs and baldric of the Knights of Pythias. The plate bore the following inscription:—

Alexander Edward Huffey,
Died February 10th, 1876,
Aged 27 years.

A large number of spectators followed the procession to the cemetery where the funeral service of the Knights was performed. The band, which made its first public appearance, played excellently to and from the grave. On the way from the cemetery, the usual custom was not observed and the band played solemn music, which seemed to meet general approbation.

The Knights of Pythias escorted the Grand Army of the Republic and Union Temple of Honor to their respective quarters on Thames street. On arriving at their lodge room the Knights passed appropriate resolutions in memory of their deceased brother.

Mr. Huffey was a member of the Knights of Pythias Beneficial Association, and his widow will probably receive between four and five hundred dollars.

THE CHAPEL ON THE POINT.

THE OPENING OF THE CHAPEL OF ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST.—A GREAT CROWD IN ATTENDANCE.—ALL THE EPISCOPAL CLERGY OF THE CITY PRESENT.—INTERESTING AND APPROPRIATE SERVICES.

The chapel of St. John the Evangelist, erected through the labors of the late Rev. I. P. White, D. D., was opened last evening for the first time for public worship. Although the services were not to begin until half-past seven o'clock there were enough persons waiting outside at six o'clock to fill the house. The chapel was opened at a quarter before seven o'clock and there was an immediate rush for seats.

The seating capacity of the house is a trifle less than two hundred, but by bringing in chairs and allowing every inch of standing room to be occupied, there were upwards of three hundred persons inside before the services began. A hundred or more were obliged to go away, being unable to get near the door even.

The exercises were opened by singing the missionary hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," after which the order of evening prayer was read by the Rev. Dr. Child, and the Rev. Messrs. Kettell, Peet and Stewart.

The Rev. A. G. Mercer, D. D., delivered a brief and interesting sermon, appropriate to the occasion, taking for his text Genesis XXXVIII:17, "This is none other than the house of God." This was said of a place where God was present; where Jacob, despondent, lay down in an open field and said, "This is none other than the house of God." This is true of all places where God and man meet. Particularly of all churches and tonight of this church. Man's worship is good, though it be in a desert. General sympathy and Christian fellowship should bind us together in unity. Forsake not the assembling of one another together. If there were no coming together there would be no Christian community.

The church is a place to hear from God. He speaks through his Word. He speaks through the voice of his ministers. He speaks through all the sacred associations of buildings devoted to his worship. The church is by no means the only place where man can hear from God. All nature speaks of Him. But churches are pre-eminently places where God addresses his people.

You come here to hear from God and God wants to hear from you in return; to have you tell Him of your darkness, your needs, privations and perplexities; to supplicate his pardon for sin; to commit yourselves and families to his care and to adore Him. This is to be done by praise and prayer. This place is called the house of praise and the house of prayer. God will listen to man at all times and in all ways but it is a help to us to use the book of prayer. In the prayer book you can address God in the best way, in the language used by the best men. No man, no matter how unlettered, is deprived of the privilege of calling upon God. To the Bible and book of prayer, the church has added beautiful hymns by which man may praise his Maker.

The poor man as well as the rich man has a perfect right to come to the house of the Lord. You should come here and delight in its adornment, and should take it upon yourselves to work for its support. Then it will become dear to you. Not until you consider this beautiful house your own, will you thoroughly enjoy it. You will need aid but churches should be self-sustaining. It is bad to be dependent upon others. Nothing however is so beautiful as to accept aid where it is needed and it is pride that keeps many from asking the assistance of others. After the lapse of a year the worshippers at this chapel would be called upon to support it.

The preacher spoke in high terms of the committee who had charge of the building of the chapel, the architect who had so tastefully modelled it and the carpenters who had put it together. He spoke of many of the residents in that neighborhood who had assisted in the building day after day without receiving or desiring any remuneration. He also spoke of the beautiful scene before him—the house crowded with worshippers. He than paid a feeling and eloquent tribute to the Rev. Dr. White, the founder of the chapel. The building is completed, but the builder is not here, and this house stands as a monument of his grave. If departed spirits, purified and solemnized by death, are allowed to revisit the scenes of their earthly labors, he is with us now, watching these opening services and taking pleasure in the work of his hands.

Dr Mercer called attention to the motto over the chancel window, "Set your affections on things above." Where our treasures are our hearts are also. We need the strength for this world and the hope for the next afforded by having our affections set on pure and holy things. He concluded his address by reading the prayer of Solomon at the dedication of the temple.

The offertory was made, and the audience united with the choir in singing "Lord, dismiss us with thy blessing," and the services concluded with the benediction.

Much credit is due to John C. Delano, William Schwarz and Willard Eddy, the building committee, who were present last night and spared no pains to find room for as many as could possibly be seated. Mrs. White and many of the leading members of Trinity church were present, and singing was done by the choir of that church. Mr. Ulmann presided at the organ.

There were general floral tributes in the chancel.

DYNAMITE.

A MAN WHO MAKES DYNAMITE SHOWS HOW SAFE IT IS TO FOOL AROUND WITH THAT SUBSTANCE.

The St. Louis Globe says it is not generally known that there is an establishment in that city for the storage and sale of dynamite, but it is so; has been so for several years, and this day there is in a Lowell magazine more than thirty thousand pounds of the article; enough, if exploded, to level a large part of the city buildings to the ground. But that there is not the slightest danger of any premature explosion, Mr. Fred Julian, the agent of the Atlantic Giant Powder Company, took special pains to demonstrate.

He invited, among others, a representative of the Globe-Democrat to witness some experiments he proposed making, and in the early part of the afternoon his pair of bays passed over the long road to Lowell, and brought the press man through the tremendous stinks of the Lowell rendering works to a little house that stood in the common, unprotected by fence or enclosure of any kind. It was probably fifteen feet square, of course had no windows, and but one metal door, several feet from the ground. Hitching the team to a fence at some distance from the house, Mr. Julian unlocked the iron magazine door and proceeded to scramble in with a lighted cigar in his mouth.

Finally, selecting a twenty-five pound box, he pitched it out of the door, down to the ground, a distance of six or eight feet, without the least ceremony. Visions of the Mosel and careless handling of the fatal freight on the dreadful day of her disaster, came before the eyes of the Globe-Democrat man as that box fell on the frozen ground with a sharp rattle, and rolled over two or three times, as if specially to provoke Providence, but nothing startling occurred. The box fell, and that was all. The scene of the Mosel was not repeated, and no remains had to be gathered up with shovels.

Clambering down and taking the box and an axe, a procession was formed to the bank of the river, close by, where a high bank presented a favorable spot for experiments. The theory that dynamite can be exploded by a sudden jar or concussion, is utterly scouted by Mr. Julian, and in proof of his earnest belief in the truth of his assertion that it would not explode under such circumstances, he took the box and threw it over the bank on some stones at the bottom. The box was shattered, the dynamite flew in all directions, was scattered here and there over the rocks, but no explosion took place.

"I propose to show you that the theory of dynamite becoming dangerous by disintegration, in freezing, is utterly absurd. I have given the dynamite as severe a jar as was necessary to have exploded it, had it been possible to have exploded in that way. When frozen it is impossible to explode it at all, and even when thawed and in a pliable state it can be exploded only by the use of a suitable percussion cap and fuse."

The man of giant powder then descended and gathered up all the dynamite that had not fallen into the river, and leaving it on one of the shattered sides of the box, brought it up, and for the first time the press man gazed on the dreaded compound. It looked harmless enough then, being a sort of grayish-yellow material in cylindrical sticks eight inches long and one inch and a quarter in diameter. Encouraged by the boldness of Julian, his guests began to pick up pieces of the powder and examine it.

"What is it made of?"

"Nitro glycerine and infusorial earth."

"In what proportions?"

"We usually use about seventy five per cent. of nitro-glycerine, though occasionally if any one wants more, seventy eight per cent. is put in, and the powder shipped to him at once. Powder made with more than seventy five per cent. nitro-glycerine is never stored."

"Where do you get the earth?"

"It comes from Germany. Occasionally we use California earth, and sometimes sawdust, in manufacturing the second quality."

"And is there no danger of this pile exploding as long as it is frozen?"

"It is perfectly impossible for it to explode while it is frozen, and after it is thawed it can be fired only with a cap and fuse."

"Will percussion explode it?"

"I'll show you."

Taking the axe, Mr. Julian proceeded to strike the pile of dirty-looking cylinders, breaking them and scattering the scraps and fragments in every direction while the bystanders looked on, but no explosion followed. "Now I will burn a little, to show that it will not explode from fire."

The fragments were gathered into a little pile, several whole and broken cylinders were laid on, for good measure, apparently, and the powder man coolly stooped over the heap, containing dynamite enough to lay in ruins any house in St. Louis, and, striking a match, applied it to the substance. The flame caught, slowly at first, rapidly afterwards, now on a little projection, then on a round surface until the whole pile was burning with a fierce pink flame and intense brilliancy, and such great heat that no one could stand within a dozen feet of it. For several minutes it hissed and glowed, and then subsided, leaving a rock-like residue which speedily hardened to the similitude of white quartz. Though the hissing was tremendous, and the light and heat overpowering, there was not the faintest explosion.

A man who admitted he played the accordion fell into the hands of the court this morning, yet, for some inexplicable reason, the judge allowed the opportunity to slip through his fingers, and only gave him thirty days. There is such a thing as trying the temper of the people too far.—[Bridgeport Standard.

The Berger Family and Sol Smith Russell's Concert company have at once stepped into great favor with our citizens, and their unique entertainments are likely to be largely attended during their brief stay. There are numerous features of excellence in the performances. Sol Smith Russell is as great a favorite as ever, and his efforts nightly evoke laughter and applause. His "Dorcas Pennyroyal" is one of the cleverest bits of eccentric characterization ever witnessed. Miss Anna Berger's cornet playing and character songs, Miss Annie Morgan's ballad singing, Mlle. Klaisy's violoncello solo, the bell ringing, and all the other features are equally good in their way.—[Boston Journal.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

CUT THIS OUT. IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.

There is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Diseases, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. Dr. A. Boschee's German Syrup has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wondrous cures astonish every one that tries it. If you doubt what we say in print, cut this out and take it to your Druggist, James H. Taylor and get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try it. Two doses will relieve you. Regular size 75 cents.

A Contrast Worthy Public Attention.

What is the effect of a drastic purgative upon the constipated bowels and a dyspeptic stomach? The intestine is emptied so violently as to weaken and render it still more inactive, and the gastric juices vitiated by contact with an indigestible medicine, lose the chemical qualities which constitute them the only true solvents of the food. Results—aggravated constipation and chronic indigestion. What, on the other hand, are the effects of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters on the same organs. The bowels are moved, but without violence, and at the same time acquire healthful tone; the gastric secretions are stimulated and improved, and duly perform their part in the processes which eventuate in the nutrition of every part of the human structure. Results—a regular habit of body, sound digestion and vigor. Let the public draw its own conclusions from this contrast.

A "Pearl of Great Price."

As no calamity is greater than the loss of eyesight, so any invention which repairs the loss is literally a pearl of great price. The celebrated "Diamond Spectacles," manufactured by the Spencer Optical Manufacturing Company of New York, have proved a blessing to many thousands who have by their use, had failing sight restored, or so arrested as to give comparatively little inconvenience.

CONSUMPTIVES, TAKE NOTICE.—Every moment of delay makes your cure more hopeless, and much depends on the judicious choice of a remedy. The amount of testimony in favor of Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure for consumption, far exceeds all that can be brought to support the pretensions of any other medicine. See Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing the certificates of many persons of the highest respectability, who have been restored to health, after being pronounced incurable by physicians of acknowledged ability. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup alone has cured many, as these evidences will show; but the cure is often promoted by the employment of two other remedies which Dr. Schenck provides for the purpose. These additional remedies are Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. By the timely use of these medicines, according to directions, Dr. Schenck certifies that most any case of consumption may be cured.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. feb7-1m

GENERAL NEWS.

FROM NEW YORK.

RUBENSTEIN CONVICTED.

The Murderer of Sara Alexander Sentenced to be Hung—He Protests His Innocence.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.

The trial of Rubenstein for the murder of Sara Alexander, was concluded and the case given to the jury at 3 o'clock, yesterday afternoon. The jury was out but an hour and twenty minutes, when it returned with a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The court room was packed with spectators, and there was considerable excitement. The prisoner was the picture of despair, and looked as if he expected to be found guilty. When the foreman of the jury announced the verdict, the relatives of the accused wept. The clerk then said, "Rubenstein, have you anything to say why the sentence of death should not be passed upon you?" The prisoner, through an interpreter, said, "I know nothing about it. I did not commit the crime, and I do not want to give up my blood. I am innocent and the jury have made a mistake." Judge Moore then sentenced the prisoner to be hanged on Friday, March 24th, between 9 A. M. and 2 P. M. Rubenstein turned very pale, and looked as if about to faint.

COAL MINE DISASTER.

Four Men Killed and Twelve Others Bruised and Mangled—Details of the Affair.

PITTSTON, Pa., Feb. 13.

A terrible explosion occurred, yesterday afternoon, in the Exeter mine, belonging to the Lehigh Valley Coal company, and located in West Pittston. The mines have been idle for the past week on account of the suspension, and, although the fan which supplies fresh air to the chambers below was kept going during the week, the quantity of air forced into the mines was not sufficient to expel all the foul air and prevent the Accumulation of Fire Damp.

The immediate cause of the explosion is not known, but it is believed that one of the men below entered a chamber with a lighted lamp, and that its sparks ignited the gas which had accumulated since last Monday. About twenty-five men have been repairing the tracks, and gangways at the headings. At half past two in the afternoon while the men were at work below, the explosion occurred. The force of the explosion tore away props, doors, tracks and Great Masses of Rock and Coal.

The roof of the fan house at the top of the air shaft was torn to pieces and thousands of dollars of damage was done. The main shaft was very badly damaged, but an entrance was effected and the work of relieving those below commenced. Four men were taken out dead and twelve others were more or less burned, and mangled. The names of the dead are D. Smalley, Edward Allen, Thomas Harris and Aleck Jones.

The Moody and Sankey Sunday Services at the Hippodrome.

Though the first Moody and Sankey meeting today was held at the early hour of eight o'clock, fully 4,000 persons were present. Mr. Moody, in his discourse, said he never had received so much encouragement in any place as here during the past week. The present harvest was ripe and ready for the reaper. It seemed as though the whole city was ready to be invited to come to Christ. He urged fathers and mothers to pay more attention to the bringing up of their children in the fear of God. Teachers of the sabbath schools should attend the revival meetings and thousands of children could be brought to Christ. Mr. Sankey sang "Go Work in my Vineyard." The afternoon meeting was exclusively for ladies; over 6000 were present. Moody earnestly appealed to the young ladies who had lived lives of carelessness to change at once and become children of Christ. Over 100 ladies, old and young, stood up to be prayed for, and while still praying Sankey broke in with the hymn, "Almost persuaded." The scene was affecting. After the meeting a number of ladies entered the inquiry rooms. Tonight's meeting was exclusively for males, and was crowded. The sermon was an earnest appeal to the hearers to receive the Gospel. The inquiry meetings were thronged.

PETER BENNETT'S CASE.

"If Mr. Stephens should be at home, and his mind not be absorbed by public affairs, the visitor will find in him the best and most prolific anecdotist of the day.

One story—alas that he can not sit in the types to tell it!—is the Peter Bennett speech. A Dr. Royston, doubtless a most excellent man, had sued Mr. Bennett, a farmer, for his bill. "Little Aleck," as Alexander is minified by his friends, told his client, Peter B., that the case of service and its value were proved against him in legal form, and there was no real defense. But the old farmer insisted that his lawyer should "speak to the case." Mr. Stephens told him that he ought to speak himself if he thought a speech could be made, and was surprised by the retort, "I will, if Bobby Toombs won't be too hard on me." Mr. Toombs promised, and Peter Bennet began:

"Gentlemen of the jury, I ain't no lawyer and no doctor, and you ain't, nuther. And if we don't stick together, these here lawyers and doctors will get the advantage of us. I ain't no objections to lawyers and doctors in their place, and some is clever men, but they ain't farmers, gentlemen of the jury. Now this Dr. Royston was a new doctor, and I sent for him to come to doctor my wife's sore leg. And he did, and put some salve truck on it and some rags, but never done it a bit of good, gentlemen of the jury. I don't believe he's no doctor, no way. There's doctors as I know is doctors, sure enough, but this ain't no doctor at all."

This was evidently telling, and Dr. Royston put in with, "Look at my diploma, and see if I am not a doctor."

"His diploma!" said the new-fledged orator, with great contempt. "That ain't nothin', for no piece of paper ever made a doctor yet.'

"Ask my patients," shouted the now furious physician.

This was the conventional straw that seemed to break the back of the orator's patience. "Ask your patients!" he said, in slow and mournful deliberation. "Ask your patients! Why, THEY'RE ALL DEAD." Then, in rapid declamation, he named case after case, well known, but mostly among the negro servants of his neighbors, where his opponent had treated them and their owners buried them, and continued: "Ask your patients! Why I would have to seek them in the lonesome churchyard, and rap on the silent tomb to get answers from the dead. You know they can't say nothin' to this case for you've killed them all!" The applause closed the speech, and the defendant had his case.—Henry W. Cleveland, in Harper's Magazine for February.

Newport Daily News.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1876.

FIRE ALARM REGULATIONS.

To Send out an Alarm.

Any person who discovers a fire is requested to immediately give the alarm by crying fire, and, going to the box nearest the fire, to send out a general alarm by procuring the key, unlocking the box, and firmly pulling the hook down, once only, then closing the door, being careful to see that it is locked, and returning the key.

The person sending out an alarm from a box is requested to remain near said box until the first engine arrives, to direct the firemen to the exact locality of the fire.

Cautions.

Never pull a box if the small gong inside is striking or the machinery of the box is heard running.

Do not pull a box for a fire seen at a distance, or unless you are aware of the locality of a fire.

Key holders are requested not to allow their keys to be taken except by responsible parties.

Bell Ringers.

Bell ringers are engaged to ring the following church bells in connection with the telegraph alarm:—

The First and North Baptist, United Congregational and Emmanuel will instruct them to ring their respective bells for five minutes immediately after the telegraphic alarm has completed its four rounds.

Recall.

Nine blows upon the telegraphic alarm bells will indicate that the fire is out and that the services of the department are not required.

Testing the Apparatus.

One stroke on the bells by the telegraphic alarm will simply indicate that the apparatus is in good order.

LOCATION OF BOXES AND KEYS.

Box No. 1.—On Lysander Stevens's house, Thames street, opposite Bridge street.

Keys at Lysander Stevens's and Daniel C. Denham's.

Box No. 3.—Mrs. Sylvanus Wilbour's house, corner of Touro and Spring streets.

Keys at Harwood E. Read's and C. T. Dubois's.

Box No. 4.—Downing's Block on Downing street near Bellevue avenue.

Keys at George T. Downing's, Bellevue avenue, Edward Hayward's Downing street and William A. Williams's, Downing Block.

Box No. 5.—On J. T. Burdick & Co's store, corner of Thames street and Brown & Howard's wharf.

Keys at J. T. Burdick & Co's store, C. H. Burdick's, Thames street and Thomas Chambers's, corner Brown & Howard's wharf.

Keys also in the hands of the firewards, city marshal and all the members of the police force. nov2

No fractions of cents to be introduced in an order. United States Treasury Notes or National Bank Notes only received or paid.

Fee for registering letters of any value 10 cents.

A FEASIBLE DARKEY.

[From the Virginia City Enterprise.]

The boot-black at the corner-stand on C street was looking for a customer. He was as black as the ace of spades, and as he carelessly dusted off his stand with the stump of a corn brush he occasionally paused and rolled his eyes hungrily up and down the street. Presently a tall, raw-boned, middle-aged man, with considerable length of goatee and not a little breadth of hat brim, stopped and glanced at the stand with some show of interest.

"Have a shine, boss?" said the owner of the stand, giving his chair a parting slap with his brush.

"Shine 'em up in half a minit, sah. You'll jist have time to glance over de morning papers."

Without deigning an answer the lank chap climbed into the seat before him.

"De people of de Souf," said the boot-black, cocking a cunning eye upon his customer, "de people of de Souf [another look of the eye] most allus gives us pore cullud boys any little feasible jobs dey's got."

"You think I'm from the South?"

"I's from de Souf, sah—from ole Kaintuck sah."

"Indeed?"

"Sartin, boss. I's from Lexin'ton, Kaintuck, sah," scraping away with an old case-knife at the mud on the soles of his customer's boots.

"I'm from Kentucky myself, and from Lexington," said the man, beginning to look interested. "So you're from Lexington, eh?"

"Jes' so, boss. Practically I was born dar, sah."

"Like you, I was born thar."

"Nice old town, boss."

"Very."

"I golly, boss, cf I didn't think from de fust dat I saw in you in de rale ole Kentucky gentleman. You've got a deal of the cut of some o' dem law and mid'cine students dat used to be about de ole Transylvania 'varsity; but you's aged a little, boss—aged a-le-etle grain more dan was de boys in dem days."

"I've often seen the old university."

"It was a fine ole town, too. De main street was more dan a mild long: dar war beautiful trees 'long de streets, and de orphan 'sylum, an' de baggin facterys, de wire works, an' de—"

"The lunatic asylum."

"Yes, boss; shore 'nuff, dar was de lunatic 'sylum."

"And the river."

"An' de ribber; I golly, dat fust big bend in Town Fork of de Elkhorn, up 'bove de city—practically dat was a mighty feasible proposition for cat-fish."

"Amazin'."

"I say, boss, practically, you never happened to know a cullard boy named Columbus Parsons, as lived out on the road to'ards whar old Harry Clay was borned—on to'ards Ashland—did yer, sah?"

"I knowed a colored boy named Columbus Parsons' that rode ole Woodpecker against Ploughboy down at the Blue Grass course and won the puss."

"De Lord love us? Was yon dar? De great hokey! Practically, I am dat same Columbus Parsons what rode ole Woodpecker and won de puss down dar to Blue Grass!"

"The Columbus Parsons I knowed used to be a great fiddler; played for all the balls and parties for miles around."

"Dat was me, sah. I was de boy. Now you's a beginnin' to know me!"

"The Columbus Parsons I used to know was a great singer—was lightnin' at all the nigger camp meetin's."

"Dat was me, boss. I'm identically and practically dat same Columbus Parsons! You's got de most feasible mem'ry dat I ever saw, sah."

"The Columbus Parsons I knowed went down to Frankfort and ran on the river as steward of the Bell Wagner."

"Yah, yah; you knows me—you knows me, boss! You knows me like a brudder, sah! In dem days didn't I put on de apparel? Wasn't I tired? Practically, sah, you's got de most feasible mem'ry dat I ever saw!"

"The Columbus Parsons that I knowed, the 'Columbus Parsons that rode old Woodpecker, the Columbus Parsons that used to sing at campmeetin's, the Columbus Parsons that was steward on the Bell Wagner, that Columbus Parsons busted open the trunk of a passenger, stole $1000 and was sent to the state prison at Frankfort for five years."

"Practically, boss, you's got a powerful fensible memory, but dar was another Columbus Parsons down dare 'bout Lexin'ton and Frankfort—particularly South Frankfort, 'cross de chain bridge—dat was a hoss-rider, a fiddler, a singer, and a steamboater, and he was a low-flung, harem-scarem, no-account fellow; I guess he mout a bin de Columbus Parsons what you knowed sah."

"You think so?"

"Sartin, sure, boss; but don't say puffin 'bout the feller heah, eah. You see practically, it mout injure my good name, sah."

A MINER'S VIEW OF THE EMMA MINE.—The Emma mine was thoroughly examined by English experts. It gave every indication of being worth ten times the amount it was sold for in London. No distillery in Kentucky ever held up such a promise of wealth as did the Emma. We do not expect to convince Eastern people of the truth of this, but miners understand it perfectly. But while we hear from Eastern papers all about mining properties bought by Englishmen that have proved to be unfortunate, not a word is said about the other class. We would suppose that even Eastern people would stop to think that there was another side to the story or Englishmen would not continue to invest here. We know one mine in this state which since its purchase has increased in value more than the Emma has depreciated, and yet, while today its stock is held at many millions, it does not look so well as the Emma did when it was sold. The Emma was a misfortune, not an intended swindle, and that fact will yet be fully demonstrated.—[Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 76 State St., opp. Kilby St., Boston.
AFTER AN EXTENSIVE PRACTICE of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."
CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office." EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY application of for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part, leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges." Bellevue Avenue, Newport.
Bouquets, Baskets, Cut Flowers and Choice Plants. Gardens laid out and kept in order by the day, month or year.

NEWPORT EXOTIC GARDEN.
WHERE can I find it? is sometimes asked by strangers, but never by old visitors.
Now is the time to secure your bedding plants. We never before had such a quantity and never such fine plants as this season, consisting of all the new and rare plants. All we desire, is to come and look and see for yourselves. Roses, Dracenas, Centaurias, Geraniums of all sorts, Carnations, Coleous, &c., all of these by the hundred or thousand. Hundreds of other varieties of bedding and foliage plants, all at low rates. Baskets, Stands, Vases, Jardinieres. A fine lot of Ferns, Begonias, Caladiums, Palms, Euphorbias, Camellias and Azalias, Rose Buds by the hundred, and everything pertaining to a first-class Horticultural Establishment. All orders received this season for Bouquets, Baskets, Cut Flowers, and decorations for parties and weddings, received at the garden, as we have vacated our store on Bellevue av., to avoid extortionate rent. Trees of various sorts to be found in addition to the above. Galvin & Dierngtay, Dearborn and Spring streets, Newport, R. I. apr5

Notice Extraordinary.
THE UNDERSIGNED returns thanks to his many customers for their patronage in the past and hopes for a continuance of their favors in the future, pledging himself in return to give them as good (if not a little better) work in all branches of his business entrusted to his care.
To my friends who have forgotten their accounts of long standing—some as long ago as 1867—if they will now call and settle their bill before the new year, their short coming will be forgiven and their future orders will be as promptly executed as heretofore.
I do all branches of Painting and Glazing, and such work as Tinting Walls and Ceilings, Graining and Marbling, Wood Filling, Shellacing, Lettering, Scrolling, Gilding, Smalting, Kalsomining, Paper Hanging; also Carriage Painting in all its various styles.
I have also in my store room the following vehicles, all in good order and ready for use, which I will sell cheap for cash or good paper, viz:

1 Barouche,
1 Victoria,
1 Phaeton with rumble and canopy.
1 Phaeton with canopy.

IMPORTANT!
THE UNDERSIGNED HAS JUST RECEIVED THE
LA BASTIE CHIMNEY, WHICH HAS CREATED A GREAT EXCITEMENT IN THE MARKET.
YOU CAN THROW IT A DISTANCE OF FOUR RODS IN AN OPEN FIELD AND IT WILL NOT BREAK. YOU CAN THROW WATER ON IT, AND IT WILL NOT BREAK.
You need not be afraid that it will break, should you let it fall upon the floor while cleaning it. It fits the A. Son Burner and is similar to the Buch chimney. The public are invited to CALL AND SEE THIS WONDERFUL ARTICLE AND THUS SAVE MONEY BY SECURING THEM FOR USE.
